NEA CHALLENGE GRANT

AT FORT MASON
CAPITAL CAMPAIGN

Fort Mason Foundation is one of eighty-seven cultural institutions nationwide awarded a Challenge Grant this year by the National Endowment for the Arts. The $100,000 NEA award must be matched by $400,000 in non-federal dollars to help complete renovation of Fort Mason Center.

The NEA is an independent federal agency, created by Congress in 1965 to encourage and support American arts and artists. Its mission is to foster the excellence, diversity and vitality of the arts in the United States and to help broaden their availability and appreciation. It awards matching grants to nonprofit organizations of outstanding quality, thus acting as a catalyst to increase support for the arts by encouraging donations from private citizens, public and private organizations, states and communities.

"This is an endorsement of what Fort Mason has accomplished in the last ten years, and of the goals stated in the Capital Campaign for the next five years" according to Marc Kasky, Executive Director of Fort Mason Center. "It is particularly gratifying in that the review and screening process is so rigorous that only a small percentage of the applicants are awarded grants."

Organizations must outline specific goals, indicating how the federal and matching funds will be used to meet the needs and long-term goals of their institutions. The overall goal of the Challenge Grant program includes encouraging the nation's arts institutions to provide improved physical plants, and to help develop new artistic ventures of a long-range nature which advance the state of the art form the institution represents. By providing improved facilities for a variety of outstanding organizations and programs, Fort Mason Center fulfills these goals admirably.

Other institutions receiving Challenge Grants this year include UC Berkeley's University Art Museum, the Asian Art Museum of San Francisco, the American Film Institute and the UCLA Performing Arts Center in Los Angeles, the Guthrie Theater Foundation of Minneapolis, the Santa Fe Opera Foundation, the Spoleto Festival USA in Charleston, South Carolina, the National Theatre of the Deaf, and WETA/Washington Educational Telecommunications Association.

The California Arts Council's director, Robert H. Reid, congratulates Fort Mason on behalf of the Council: "The Fort Mason Center has been acknowledged as an important cultural institution in California. I am very pleased that the NEA considers you similarly on the national level. Your institution brings pride and cultural richness to California."

The At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign is a $7.5 million fund-raising effort to complete ten major renovations projects within the historic Piers and Landmark Buildings of Fort Mason Center. To date, over $4.5 million has been raised. For information, call 441-3400.

HOLIDAY GIFT-GIVING

Folk Art International presents the eighth annual Christmas Exhibition and Sale in the Conference Center from November 21 through December 27. The event features museum-quality folk art from around the world. This outstanding assortment of antique and modern crafts includes gilded Indonesian wood carvings and elaborately designed Javanese shadow puppets, pictorial tapestries created by children in a small village outside of Cairo, an imperial court robe and altar hangings from China, Shipibo pots from the Amazon River region, folk toys and ornaments from Asia and the Americas, and contemporary artifacts from the Plains Indians, such as traditional ceremonial staffs, drums and rattles, skull masks, and hunting shirts.

Saratoga students at Foothill School participate in Folk Art International's Resources for Education program.

For the first time, Folk Art presents an exhibit of its permanent collection, and a photodocumentary show of its recent activities. These include the completion of eight water wells in the drought-stricken Bandiagara region of Mali, a project stemming from Folk Art's concern for preserving the land and culture of the Dogon, a traditionally agricultural people who have inhabited the area for over 500 years; and the inauguration of Folk Art International's Resources for Education (FAIRE) program—multi-cultural school kits that introduce masks and masking traditions from Africa, Bali, Japan, Mexico, New Guinea, and North America. Also available from FAIRE's resource collection are musical instruments, textiles, puppets, and folk toys, all loaned free of charge to teachers in Northern California. Contact Sue Gartley, Project Director, at 441-6100 for more information. Hours are 10am to 8pm Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10am to 6pm Sundays and Mondays. The show is closed on Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day. Admission is free. For information, call 673-4094.

SF Craft & Folk Art Museum offers a greatly expanded Museum Shop, in the Gatehouse at the entrance to Fort Mason Center. Beautiful baskets, jewelry, and textile art, both contemporary and traditional, will be for sale, from the Miller/Brown Gallery collection. From November 22 through December 24, 10am to 8pm Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10am to 6pm Sundays and Mondays. Closed on Thanksgiving Day. Admission is free. For information, call 775-0990.

Fort Mason Art Center presents its 12th annual Christmas show and sale, exhibiting works of instructors and students from the Community College facility. Featured are paintings, drawings, prints, ceramics, sculpture, stained glass, jewelry, quilted items, soft sculpture, weaving, and hand-loomed tapestry. Building B classrooms are arranged as gallery spaces, displaying hundreds of works of art, by promising beginners, proficient amateurs, and accomplished professionals. Information about classes is available. On Saturday and Sunday, December 12 and 13, from 10am to 6pm. Admission is free. For information, call 775-5579.

The Fund for Animals presents its annual Santa Claws Party, an open house for animal rights activists, with entertainment, food, information about Bay Area organizations, and Christmas gifts for both pets and people. In Building C, from 7 to 10pm on Saturday, December 12. Admission is free. For information, call 474-4020.

The Guardsmen Christmas Tree Sale, daily from 8:30am to 9pm, November 27 through December 22 in Pier 3. This annual sale is a benefit, helping to send underprivileged children to summer camp. At this indoor location, the largest Christmas tree lot in Northern California, you can shop for trees, garlands, holly, poinsettia, mistletoe, and a variety of decorations for your holiday celebrations. Flame retarding, flocking and delivery services are also available. Advance sales of trees for stores and offices can be arranged—call 775-6852. Admission is free. For information, call 771-7747.

In addition to these traditional Christmas sales, there are many other opportunities for gift-giving at Fort Mason. There are other galleries and shops; there are art works for rent; there are memberships in a wide range of organizations; there are classes of all kinds, for all ages; there are theater tickets for outstanding performances; there are special events. Look through the daily listings, the classes and workshops and galleries, the residents' directory. Within Fort Mason, you might find the gift for everyone on your list for this holiday season. Happy shopping!

AERIALISTS, ACROBATS, JUGGLERS & CLOWNS

Little Nemo in Slumberland, Winsor McCay's classic turn-of-the-century comic strip, comes to life this winter at Fort Mason. Make-A-Circus presents an original theatrical and musical adaptation of the famous work at the Life On The Water Performance Center in Building B.

The play is based on characters and stories from McCay's pioneering full-page, full-color comic strip that first appeared in 1905, and for 20 years ran off and on in newspapers throughout the country. The strips chronicled the nightly adventures of Nemo into the realms of King Morpheus of Slumberland. Some were lighthearted sojourns across "oceans of pure rose water" to places like Befuddle Hall or the Ice Palace. Others were almost nightmarish journeys filled with strange figures and hallucinatory landscapes. But no matter how bizarre or beautiful, each strip ended, like dreams themselves, with Nemo's safe return to the comfort of his own bed.

Using a format well-suited for Little Nemo, which often contained images of acrobats, clowns, and circus animals, the production features scripted theater and original live music (composed and performed by the Make-A-Circus Jazz Band), combined with the circus skills of aerialists, acrobats, jugglers and clowns. This is the first time in Make-A-Circus' 14-year history that it has created and designed a production specifically for indoor performance. The company is best known for its free-in-the-parks performances during the summer months.

Samples of the original full-size, full-color comic strips will be on display in the lobby of Life On The Water during the show's run, along with videotapes of McCay's animated works. There will also be special surprises for audience members who arrive in sleepwear.

Performances run from December 4 through 20, Fridays at 7pm, Saturdays 3:30 and 7pm, Sundays 1 and 3:30pm, with special weekday, daytime performances available for groups and schools (call 776-8477 for information). Tickets (except for the December 4 opening) are $8 for adults, $5 for children and seniors, available through BASS, STBS, or by calling Life On The Water at 776-8999.

Friday, December 4 is a special benefit reception and opening with Maurice Sendak, award-winning author and illustrator of "Where the Wild Things Are" and "In the Night Kitchen." Proceeds benefit Make-A-Circus and the San Francisco Cartoon Art Museum. Benefit tickets (reception at 7pm, performance at 8pm) are $20 for adults, $10 for children, and $50 for families (two adults and two children). Call 776-8477 for information.
